Mrs. Lambert Pack Passes Away

After years of suffering from heart trouble and other complications, Mrs. L. L. Pack passed away in the Lethbridge Hospital at about 7 a.m. Thursday morning apparently in her sleep. The nurse was in the room at 6:30 and deceased was sleeping peacefully. At 7 when the nurse entered the room again she was gone.

Mrs. Pack will be missed by a wide circle of friends. Of late years she has not been able to go far from home except in the car but she visited a great deal with her neighbors and will be greatly missed by them. Our sympathies goes out to the husband and the five children, two sons and three daughters all married left to mourn the passing of wife and mother. Funeral arrangements have not been announced as yet.

Allies Face "Dark Hour" In Efforts

The world was shocked beyond words when word was flashed Tuesday morning that King Leopold of Belgium had capitulated and ordered his soldiers to lay down their arms. Between two and three hundred thousand of them obeyed, and it left the British Expeditionary force in Flanders in a very dangerous position as additional German units were hurled against them through the gap left by the Belgians. The French increased their activity on the other side of the spearhead and the Royal Air force went into action with renewed activity to curtain the retreat of the B.E.F. to the coast where they could embark for another front. In the retreat they resisted a stiff rear attack but at last reports were succeeding in retreat without any great loss.

It was only eighteen days before that Belgium had called on the Allies for assistance, and then this act, described as treachery by Leopold's own cabinet ministers who refused to accept the order and ordered the troops to fight on, which many of them did. Rumor states that this action on the part of Leopold has been planned for some time between he and Hitler, and judging by the way Hitler treated him and the suggestions that he might be asked to return to Brussels and form a government that would give Belgium to Hitler adds weight to the rumor. The world expected, that, like his illustrious father, he would fight to the end, but for some reason, unknown at present, this was not to be, and he turned the Allies down and left a large force in a very precarious position, as he capitulated without consulting the Allied officials and against the advice of his Premier and cabinet ministers.

One bright ray through the clouds was the reported capture of Narvik, in Norway by Allied forces, which may hamper Nazi activity some through not having this port for shipments of iron and ore. The garrison which occupied Narvik face either capitulation, annihilation or internment in Sweden when they cross the border into that nation.

Despite the actions of King Leopold the Allies are increasing their activity, and in France it is reported that a proclamation has been sent out announcing the disownment by Belgium of her King, and calling for the people to muster all their man power and wealth and get into the fight by the side of the Allies and stay there until victory is won. Refugees in France are said to be already mobilizing to replace the soldiers who in obedience to their King's orders laid down their arms. What a blow to the Allied forces, who for three weeks have been facing the full force of Hitler's well planned war machine, and just when the tide seemed to start on the turn to be treated like this. It will require the courage and bulldog tenacity of the Allied governments and armies to meet the situation and to carry on, which we must do.

Italy is standing on the brink of entry into the war according to reports. Stalin has said if she moves into the Balkans he will strike against her with his Russian armies. She will meet stiff resistance if she makes any move in the Mediterranean and it is stated that relations between Britain, France and Russia are becoming more friendly every day, so that what action may be taken, and how will the wheel of fortune turn when a decision is made, is a question that time alone will answer.

Raymond Has Three Dominion Champions

Congratulations to the Raymond A.A.A., to Coach Ronald Folsom and mostly to the three boys Bobbie Lafferty, Blackie Jamieson and Doug Allen, who represented Raymond at the Dominion Boxing Championships in Cardston last week, and brought home three Dominion crowns each winning in his respective class. Vancouver, one of Canada's largest cities, was the only other place in Canada getting three championships, so we feel that Raymond may feel justly proud of her accomplishments.

We should point out that the holding of the Championships in Southern Alberta gave local boxers a big break in attendance and participation, but this should not detract from the fact that Alberta boys won their spurs in no uncertain manner, winning nine out of the fourteen championships awarded during the three night card.

Those who watched the local boys in the ring said that they demonstrated their superiority over their opponents, and certainly deserved the win. For the past month they have been working out every night, and morning on the road, and gymnasium work in the afternoon under the guiding eye of Ron Folsom, and they say when Ron takes a student into training he really trains or else. Well, be that as it may, the training plus the calibre of the boys brought us three Dominion crowns, and should make every one feel proud of the boys and their coach, and the Athletic Association and its officials who sponsored and encouraged this work.

Lafferty met his old rival Kay Burnham of Cardston, and there was no question about the winner when the final gong went. Burnham had an advantage in reach, but Lafferty kept right in there and poured lead into Burnham's face until the advantage of reach was soon offset and the Raymond boy won.

Doug Allen was awarded the 90 lb. class by default, the lad who expected to fight in this class being unable to make the weight.

Doug then stepped up to the 100 lb. class, was given a bye in first draw, and met his pal Jamieson in the finals, the decision going to Jamieson to give Raymond her third Dominion championship. Again we say congratulations to those who assisted in bringing this honor to our town.

Following are the Dominion winners:

In the Open Class:

Heavyweight—Gerald Bethune, Montreal, Que.

Light Heavyweight—Alan Dunn, Vancouver, B. C.

Middleweight—Buster Murdoch, Lethbridge.

Welterweight—Frank Petroski, Regina, Sask.

Lightweight—Webb Frizelle, Lacombe, Alta.

Featherweight—Henry Devine, Vancouver, B.C.

Bantamweight—Hugh Sloan, Cardston.

Flyweight—Tadao Kato, Vancouver, B.C.

Novice Class:

Middleweight—Larry Leavitt, Cardston.

Welterweight—Reg Siddons, Alick, Alta.

Featherweight—Tony Boguski, Lethbridge.

JUNIORS:

80 Pound Class—Bob Lafferty, Raymond.

90 Pound Class—Doug Allen, Raymond.

100 Pound Class—Harold Jamieson, Raymond.

Congratulations too to the Cardston A.A.A. who arranged and staged the bouts, taking on a big responsibility, financial and otherwise in staging an affair so important and far reaching.

Quarterly Conference Well Attended

Quarterly Conference of the Taylor Stake of Zion was held Saturday evening in the Second Ward Church, with all three sessions on Sunday being held in the new Stake and Ward House, which while not quite completed, was used and served very well, the amplifying equipment making it possible for everyone present to hear and enjoy the services. Wm. C. Stone, Stake Chorister conducted the singing for all meetings with Mrs. Emma Dahl and Roi Stone at the piano and organ respectively.

Elder Joseph F. Merrill of the Council of the Twelve was present representing the General authorities of the Church and spoke at all the meetings.

Saturday evening's meeting was a report meeting when reports from the different Melchizedic Priesthood quorums were received, and reports and talks on Welfare work in the Stake, and a report on special activities of the Aaronic Priesthood program.

In a few minutes talk Elder Merrill urged Quorum presidents not to lose personal contact with their members, there were 37,000 Adult Aaronic Priesthood members in the Church, and most of these men were in this class because of a lack of interest of presiding officers in their welfare. Speaking of the church wide campaign for the reading and study of the three pamphlets on reasons for keeping the Word of Wisdom from a scientific standpoint, Elder Merrill stated that a great many parents were unable to give their boys and girls good reasons, except that it was a command, for our observing this rule of life, and the authorities were urging the reading by every member of these pamphlets so they would have added evidence for the observance of this rule of life.

After the opening exercises Sunday morning, Elder Victor Larsen, recently returned from the Northwestern States Mission reported his labors after Bishop J.O. Hicken had welcomed the Conference to the new building. Pres. M. T. King spoke briefly on the terrible cost in men and money of the war, and stated that we in America knew little if anything of the terrible destruction and havoc it wrought.

Elder Merrill congratulated the Stake on the fine building it had to meet in. He related a number of his personal experiences of the direct answer to prayer, and thought that what we needed most at this time was faith in the great work we are engaged in and a humble and prayerful spirit to meet the problems of the day as they confront us.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Pres. Heber F. Allen spoke on the restoration of the Melchizedic Priesthood to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery, and spoke of the direct line of descent of this Priesthood from the beginning of this dispensation to the present time, every man who holds it being able to trace his authority directly to the Prophet.

Stake Clerk I. B. Roberts presented the General Church and Stake authorities and they were unanimously sustained by the Conference.

Pres. T. Geo. Wood spoke briefly and reported a membership of 3,839 in the Stake, and urged that we have patience with our boys and girls. We are facing difficult times, and we will need all the faith and courage we can muster to meet them and overcome them, but to its appearance.

we can and we must.

Elder Merrill commended the records made by the Stake and urged that we continue. This is a missionary church and every member should be preaching the gospel every day in the life that he or she lives, if we live the gospel we shall have joy he said. The first world war took people off their knees and caused them to lose faith in God, through genealogy and research combined with Temple work we can hold out the offer of exaltation to those who have died without hearing the Gospel and in that way perform a great mission. God is a God of love and is anxious that all people should accept Him and serve Him. However, we live in a world where free agency is supposed to rule and people will do as they choose.

He spoke of the present conflict as an effort to deprive people of their free agency, and stated that the more sorrow Satan could bring into the world the happier he was. The hour of freedom is very dark, he said in speaking of the present war situation, and he hoped that in some manner God would strengthen the hands of the Allies so that the effort of Hitler to rob men of freedom and free agency would be frustrated. If all would live the teachings of the Gospel of Christ, there would be no war, because every man would do to others as he would like to be done by.

The Stake M.I.A. had charge of the evening meeting and A. H. Zabriskie of the Raymond 1st Ward presented the theme, Mrs. Alvin Bullock of Welling gave a very fine retold story, for our observing this rule of life, and the authorities were urging the reading by every member of these pamphlets so they would have added evidence for the observance of this rule of life.

After the opening exercises Sunday morning, Elder Victor Larsen, recently returned from the Northwestern States Mission reported his labors after Bishop J.O. Hicken had welcomed the Conference to the new building. Pres. M. T. King spoke briefly on the terrible cost in men and money of the war, and stated that we in America knew little if anything of the terrible destruction and havoc it wrought.

Elder Merrill congratulated the Stake on the fine building it had to meet in. He related a number of his personal experiences of the direct answer to prayer, and thought that what we needed most at this time was faith in the great work we are engaged in and a humble and prayerful spirit to meet the problems of the day as they confront us.

Elder Merrill spoke again on the "Vitality of Mormonism." He related several personal experiences he had in Europe, where people who had really studied the history of the Church paid great tribute to the organizing ability of Joseph Smith and the beautiful nature of his teachings, but could not accept it from a religious standpoint. As a prophet Joseph Smith was either true or false, and if he was false he founded the greatest deception ever foisted upon the people of the earth. In the hundreds of returned missionaries that he had heard report he had yet to meet one who did not say that they knew this work was true, and that the Prophet Joseph Smith was a true prophet. The challenge to youth today was to labor to obtain an individual testimony to the truth of this thing, and only this would make us secure.

FINE MUSICAL PROGRAM

The three meetings on Sunday were characterized by a lovely musical program. The Stake Choir had been working for the past two months preparing their program, and it was thoroughly enjoyed by the large congregation. Assisting with solos were Miss Anne Leishman of Lethbridge, Mrs. John S. Smith of Cardston, and John Parrish of Salt Lake City, who is here conducting a course for Organists and Choristers under the direction of the Church Music Committee. Congratulations are due the leaders and members of the Choir for the fine work they did.

T. Ehler and Son were busy Monday laying the sidewalk for L. Palmer. Les also had his house gone over last week with stucco paint & has added much to its appearance.

SUCCESS: WHAT IS IT? HOW MAY WE ATTAIN IT?

We shall not attempt to tell anyone else how to attain the success he is after. Nor shall we attempt to say exactly what success is. It has a different meaning to each individual, and what may be complete and satisfying success to one may be the opposite to another, depending on our ultimate goal in life, not today, nor ten years from now, but when we have to meet our record and give an account of the deeds done in the body. For the foundation then of this article let us presume that the following truths are universally accepted and are the directing guide lights along the highway of life:

"The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof."

"As man is God once was, as God is man may become."

"Man is that he might have joy."

"Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, mind, soul and strength and thy neighbor as thyself."

Now, if these statements are merely Sunday phrases to make a nice sounding sermon, or help a teacher in dressing up a Sunday School lesson to sound good, we had better stop now. Did the Great Teacher really mean what He said when in these words or others He left us the gems of truth to guide us on the highway of life? Is it possible in the midst of the bloodshed and destruction that is being heaped upon the world that there is a God of Love back of it all? There is, and one need go no further than his own family experiences to see why, even in the midst of all this chaos there is still a God of Love. In our experience we have received our share of hidings for disobedience. At the time we surely felt there was no love in our earthly father for these whippings, and yet, looking back 25 years or so, these same chastisements were the means to our spirit of law abiding and respect for the rights of others. Without them we might easily have been a guest of the Government today in some of its penal institutions. As with us as individuals, so with the world. We have been placed here to carry out certain commandments. We fail in obeying them, we go further, we cease to strive to obey them, and then in a sense we flaunt our disobedience in the face of a patient and loving Father but, in the end, in order to keep with in the realm of salvation, we have to get our spanking. Speaking in general terms, the world is getting hers now, because of the love of the Father.

If the commandments had been observed, and if today, the millions being spent for war, were being used in the fulfillment of the 2 first great commandments of love, what progress and advancement the world might be making today instead of the slaughter that is going on.

And so, with the individual. If our vision were such that we could keep it on the ultimate goal, our own salvation and exaltation in the realms of glory, we would not have strata and cliques in our communities. We would not enjoy snubbing our fellow creature because of a little difference in our financial standing. We would not wantonly hurt nor wound one's feelings in anyway, because we would appreciate this fact, we are all God's stewards. The worldly wealth we have is not ours. He has given it to us to test us. At times he showers the blessings of heaven on a person to give them a chance. If they fail, these blessings are as quickly taken away, and these stewards have their stewardships taken away and given to another.

The worst sin of wealth is not in the obtaining the wealth but the blight that it puts on the souls of most who have it. It makes them cold, indifferent and almost resentful to those who have not. When the Great Teacher said "Let him who would be great among you be your minister" he enunciated the great virtue of "SERVICE." We have never yet seen a man or woman who took delight in serving, but who were rich. Not rich in money, which so many time cakes the soul, but rich in friends, rich in happiness, rich in the satisfaction of having helped someone in their time of distress and need. This is the wealth that money cannot buy, and this is the atmosphere of life that makes one person universally loved, and another universally hated.

Then too our horizons change in youth success is having the money to buy what we want. In our younger married life, it is a better home than our neighbors, advantages for our offspring that will put them above the average, and usually to the decided detriment of our loved children. And then, in later life, unless our vision has been dwarfed entirely, as sometimes happens we begin to think of the final drama of life, the passing from this life to the next, the record we will have to meet, and what we have done to make a record that we shall not be ashamed of. How much better and happier and wealthier we would all be, if with our getting in the heyday of life we could remember the Lord with his tenth, we could remember the fatherless and the widow, the orphan and the destitute; if we could think of those unable to help themselves and bold out a hand of assistance to them. Then we would be living. Then we would taste the sweetness of service, and our whole life and being would be richer because of it.

We are of the opinion that when our souls grow to the point where we can live these great commandments of Love and Service, that as God's children we shall be blessed with the things of this world in a abundance, so long as we are willing to use them according to his instructions. If we could not use them that way we are better off without them, although accepting this as truth and philosophy is one of the hardest things we have to take. At any event, one is forced to the conclusion that Success is not entirely in the accumulation of earthly things, although we all appreciate and long for these. Success is using our strength and our wealth for building up the Kingdom of God on the earth, and writing a record in eternity that will not be a head ache to us. What is your desire respecting that record? What is success to you?

CALL FOR TENDERS ON HIGHWAY WORK

Calling first for tenders on sections of the Jasper highway the provincial government is preparing to have this road in the best shape possible for the expected rush of motor tourists this season.

Assurance has been given the Association that everything possible will be done to have certain sections of main highways in good condition for the holiday season.

Weather conditions delayed highway work longer than usual this season but during the next few weeks, crews will be active in various parts of the province.

Contracts for surfacing operations on main roads in the central and southern parts of the province are expected to be awarded shortly.

Damage from flood conditions was estimated at about $500,000 by the public work department. While this may fall, government officials state that it is the intention nevertheless to carry out an extensive road improvement program this season.

WAR SAVING CERTIFICATES

and WAR SAVING STAMPS

Ottawa.—Full co-operation of leaders from every walk of life in Canada will be at the disposal of the Government in promoting the sale of War Savings Certificates and War Savings Stamps which went on sale in every city, town and hamlet across the country last Monday.

Walter H. Somerville and M. de Gaspe Beaubien, Joint Chairmen of the National War Savings Committee, will be aided by a National Advisory Panel which will include labour leaders, the heads of important women's organizations, representatives of the Civil Service, Agriculture, the press, and key men from chain stores, banks, security dealers, trust and loan companies, the post office, insurance companies, and other business institutions which have undertaken to sell War Savings Certificates and War Saving Stamps.

As an indication of the nature of the support which is being accorded the National Chairmen by the business community it is pointed out that one industry alone has placed at the disposal of the Government a highly skilled sales force of over 800 men. Other firms which will be handling War Savings Certificates and War Savings Stamps have already called together their key salesmen to inform them of the nature and purpose of this nation-wide program.

Valuable advice based on years of practical experience in sales promotion is daily available to the National War Savings Committee from this group of experts.

With such an organization now operating at full pressure, the National Committee is confident that, beginning Monday morning, when the sale of War Savings Certificates and War Savings Stamps commenced, every man, woman and child in Canada will be able to obtain them without any difficulty or delay whatever.

The launching of this nationwide undertaking was announced in English by the Hon. J.L. Ralston, Minister of Finance, and in French by the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, over a coast to coast radio net work Sunday night at 9:30 Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

those fellows who work best at full speed," he tells me in his letter. "My mates call me a driver because I work very quickly and like to get things done in a hurry, but I find that in my hurry I often overlook some detail, and the job has to be done all over again. Lately, this has been getting me into trouble. Is there anything I can do about it?"

Yes! There is much that you can do about it, Bob. Your impulsive haste is due to your inability to properly control your self, and you should begin at once to practice self-control.

But first of all, it will be necessary to learn to correctly control your thoughts. You are not taking sufficient time to think. Just as soon as an idea pops into your mind you rush on to put it into effect—a sure sign that you are lacking in mental discipline.

Every thought tends to be come action, and hasty actions are usually the outcome of immature thoughts. That is why those who act impulsively some times do the queerest things & make mistakes for which there seems to be no reasonable excuse. To prevent that, you must learn to consciously control your thoughts.

You see, life is largely habit, and you are what your friends call "a driver" because impulsive haste has become a habit with you. The only way to change an undesirable habit is to form another habit to take its place, and this you must do. You must substitute a beneficial habit for the harmful one.

Begin now to cultivate deliberateness of thought and action. When you have something to do, take all the time necessary to think out well beforehand the best way of doing it. Consider the job bit by bit. Formulate in your mind a plan, and then proceed to deliberately work according to the plan you

WEEKLY LETTER —o— SUMMER-FALLOW

Summer-fallowing time is here again and inquiries are being received at the Lethbridge Experimental Station regarding the advisability of leaving stubble and other trash on the surface of ploughless tillage. The value of trash covers for protecting fallows from drifting, has been emphasized repeatedly by the Station for over 10 years. The value of trash covers for wind proofing the soil has been demonstrated on many thousands of acres.

This year, almost every field that will be summer-fallowed is covered with a heavy stubble so there should be little difficulty in leaving sufficient trash on the surface. One way rises have proved to be quite satisfactory for summer-fallowing where real heavy stubble is present except on a few fields where the growth of stubble and Russian thistle is too great for the oneway to get through. On such fields, oneways with large pans are best but even with the smaller pans, it may be possible to disc the fields sufficiently to kill the weeds, if the work is done when the soil is not too wet. The Noble blade and the large duckfoot cultivator made from engine gear, ploughs are handling extremely heavy stands of stubble and dead thistles.

One danger this year is that farmers will be tempted to burn off this heavy covering, to simplify their summer-fallowing. If this is done, there is grave danger of severe drift of such fields before spring. In the past, farmers who have been unwise enough to burn the stubble on land they intend to summer-fallow, have found it necessary to plough such fields as ploughless fallowing is not safe where there is no trash. The practise that has have mentally conceived. By taking time to think, and by cultivating the habit of deliberateness, you will soon be able to correct this wrong habit that is getting you into trouble. You will do much better work, and you will get through more work. But, best of all, you will get more joy out of living and you will add years to your life. N.B. What is your problem? Address all communications to: Dr. M. M. Lappin, 501 Ryrie Building, Toronto, Ontario.

ALBERTA WOMAN RECEIVES FIRST LETTER FROM DAUGHTER, SISTER IN WAR AREA

Through the medium of the Alberta Division of the Red Cross, Mrs. John Hrisook of Ksituan, Alberta, has received a letter from her daughter and sister residing in Previdzia Zupa, province of Kirsanska, Czechoslovakia.

Following the German invasion there had been no word from them and Mrs. Hrisook appealed to the Spirit River Red Cross Branch to endeavour to establish communication. The appeal was made in January. The letter received tells that both daughter and sister are well, and Mrs. Hrisook is asked to write to the through the International Red Cross.

Location of relatives and friends in the war zone is an important service given by the Red Cross. It covers all that portion of Poland in German hands and provides a check for inquiries as to interned soldiers and refugees in Rumania, Hungary, Lithuania, Latvia and other nations in which there are war fugitives and also prisoners of war in all the belligerent countries.

Forms for inquiries for both civilians and soldiers may be obtained from Red Cross Branches and the Divisional Office.

proved most satisfactory where bare fields are being fallowed is to cultivate with a duckfoot cultivator blade or the oneway to keep the weed growth down until the 20th of July, then the field is ploughed at least 6 inches deep and left without further cultivation until the following spring.

It should be emphasized, however, that it is possible to ploughless till fields that have a heavy stubble. Many farmers are doing it and almost everyone can. This stubble is a splendid protection against drifting and it should not be destroyed.

It has been stated that the discovery of the trash cover and strip farming to wind-proof the summer-fallow is the most outstanding advancement made in the present century so far as prairie farming is concerned.

CHAPTER IX

"Hello!" murmured Miss Sanderson, bringing the machine to an abrupt stop with a scream of brakes and a flurry of gravel. "Hello," said Jim in a voice that did not sound like his. She was alone in the coupe except for the elaborate bag of clubs which Howard had procured for her the day before. ment toward the big canvas curt silk blouse with a halter neck tied under her chin and a pair of blue shorts. A blue silk handkerchief caught her eye. She looked disgruntled and sleepy and she smothered a yawn as she climbed out of the car.

"Of all ungodly hours to get up!" she complained. "I left everybody else fast asleep." "That's why I didn't expect you," said Jim.

She gave him a sultry glance except her seditious face lifted. "Maybe that's why I came, to prove you can't be right all the time."

Jim led the way without comment toward the big canvas curtain tacked up at the end of a wire enclosure behind the caddy house.

"You're a long way from being ready to hit a ball yet," said Jim. "Let's see you swing. No, no! That isn't a baseball bat. Hold it this way, and for heaven's sake cut out the debutante slouch and get some backbone into your stance."

Jim ignored the black glances she gave him from time to time. He went on quietly showing her where she was doing everything wrong. It was all iniquitous work.

He had to confess that she had proved an apt pupil. She had been back slid occasionally, but in the main she seemed to have acquired a surprising grasp of the essentials in the time allotted.

"All right," said Jim when the hour was up. "that will do for today."

She flexed the muscles of her left arm. "I seem to be sore."

Jim grinned. "Wait till tomorrow. You'll know all about it."

Her glance smoldered. "Maybe I'm not so soft as you think. Anyway, I'm going to play a ers cannot put right in a har round this afternoon. Charley horses or not," she announced defiantly.

"I don't want you to set foot on the course until you've had ten more lessons," he said. "If you continue to improve you can play Saturday."

"I'll play when I like." "That's up to you," said Jim. "Only if you do have lost a pupil."

Their glances tangled and her eyes fell first. "All right," she said. "You win. I'll play Saturday."

She gave him a rueful glance from under her lashes. "No one was ever mean to me before. I ought to hate you."

Jim could feel himself growling and he asked himself, "Don't you?" he asked msteadily.

She had come nearer, so near he could not get his breath. "Maybe it's because you're different," she whispered, "but I wish you didn't despise me."

Jim could think of nothing except her seditious face lifted alluringly to his.

"I don't despise you," he said hoarsely. "I think you're the prettiest thing I ever looked at."

"Honestly?" "Honestly," repeated Jim with a painful flush.

"I have a feeling given a proper chance, we could go for each other in a large way," she murmured, then turned toward no! That isn't a baseball bat. The car. "See you tomorrow morning, Professor," she said en's sake cut out the debutante and drove rapidly away.

The grounds of the old Radcliffe place took up an entire block. A rough stone wall enclosed the property on all sides.

Janet's grandfather had made a gallant effort to retrieve the family fortunes, but he was more statesman than politician and, while he made an excellent governor, he was too honest to manufacture capital from a political career. When he died he left barely enough to settle his debts.

Tony Ryan drew a large key from his pocket. In fuming silence Janet followed him up the wide steps to the great brass studded front door with its delicate knocker overhead.

In the same oppressive silence they made a tour of the old mansion and returned to the double parlors on the south.

There's nothing wrong which I'm not so soft as you think. a crew of high-priced carpenters cannot put right in a har ry. The real estate agency advises me that Busby is the best carpenter in town. You'll work directly with him.

"I'll not be able to get out here often," he continued. "I have a number of loose ends to tie off now that I've finally decided to retire. I'll tell Busby I want everything in this house put back exactly as it was. You will be the judge what's what. When he's finished we'll take up the question of furnishings."

"I still feel as if I'd be taking money under false pretenses," she murmured uncertainly. "I never allow myself to be cheated," said Tony, leading the way back to the car.

By five o'clock that afternoon it was raining and the golf course was deserted. Jim Phillips had no desire to hang around with the crowd which was having cocktails in the club house, a crowd that included Howard and Priscilla Leigh, also Tony Ryan and Miss Helen Sanderson.

When Jim entered the flat Janet was stretched out on the day bed in the dining room, staring at the streaming window panes with an expression as inglorious as the weather, and Cathy Wood was sitting on the floor beside Danny who had fallen asleep and was curled up under a faded crocheted afghan like a little bug in a rug.

"Hello, everybody," said Jim sounding more cheerful than he felt.

"Hello," murmured Janet in a listless voice.

Cathy looked up quickly and smiled. "Hello, Jim," she said softly.

Dropping down into a big wicker chair Jim leaned his head back and extended his long legs at full length. "Rotten afternoon," he remarked.

Janet's lips tightened. "Some days must be dark and dreary," she quoted bitterly.

Jim laughed. Cathy said nothing. Jim had noticed that as a rule you had to discover what Cathy was thinking by what she did not say. He watched her slim fingers busily engaged with needle and thread. She was mending a pair of brief silken trunks, part of her dancing costume. She held the trunks up critically between herself and the fading light to inspect her stitches.

"They're not much bigger than Danny's pants," commented Jim with a chuckle.

To his surprise Cathy blushed. The color washed painfully into her pinched face, and Jim realized with acute dismay that he had hurt her.

"At that," he said in an effort to make amends, "when it comes to covering, they're as adequate as the new bathing suits all the girls wear."

"The difference is, I draw a salary for exposing my physical charms, if any," Cathy explained and added with a short laugh "You can get by with murder so long as you don't lose your amateur standing. 'S funny, or isn't it, how it's usually the society dame with the least on who sneers at the brazen chorus girl."

"It is when you're poor but proud," muttered Jim.

Janet stared at him in astonishment. "It's something new for you to feel like that," she said. "You've always seemed to think we ought to thank goodness for our obstacles because they're supposed to develop character, or what have you?"

(To be continued)

A number of relatives of enlisted men were in Lethbridge early Sunday morning when the men entrained for further training camps in Eastern Canada. It is not expected that they will return before sailing for Europe, especially in view of the fact that it has been decided now to organize Canada's fourth division.

NEW ALBERTA ROAD MAP

The Provincial Department of Public Works has issued a new road map, designated "1940 Official Road Map Alberta (Canada) Highways." The map when opened out is 22 inches x 20 1/2 inches with the main highways printed in red and designated by a legend as to whether they are paved, gravelled or just graded roads. District roads are shown by two blue parallel lines. The Trans-Canada air route is marked by a red dotted line and the National Park areas are shown in green. There is a valuable mileage chart on reverse side.

Folded, the map occupies a space of five inches by eleven inches and six National views are artistically arranged on the outside folds.

The maps have been issued for free distribution and are obtainable on application from the Department of Public Works, Province of Alberta, Edmonton.

WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES

A direct obligation of the Dominion of Canada

"Since the momentous day of last September, hundreds of thousands of Canadians have been asking themselves, 'What can I do to help win the war?'"

"One answer is, 'By saving.' Every man, woman and child in the Dominion can now make a direct and continuing contribution to Canada's war effort by saving not only his dollars, but also his nickels, dimes and quarters to buy Canada's War Savings Certificates."

W. L. Mackenzie King
MINISTER OF FINANCE.

WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES: are repayable in seven and one-half years. If you hold them to maturity, you will receive 3% on your money — your investment will increase by 25%. They are sold as follows:—

For a $5 certificate you pay $4
For a $10 certificate you pay $8
For a $25 certificate you pay $20
For a $50 certificate you pay $40
For a $100 certificate you pay $80

TO FIT ANY BUDGET: You can take advantage of this patriotic and profitable savings plan, whether your savings are measured in dollars or in occasional nickels, dimes and quarters. Canada's War Savings Certificates are expressly designed to appeal to the man or woman of modest means who cannot afford to subscribe to war bonds of larger denominations, but who desires to do something tangible to assist the Country's war effort.

CHILDREN TOO: Even children can purchase War Savings Certificates, using their coppers, nickels and dimes to buy War Savings Stamps at 25c each. Sixteen of these stamps will buy one $5 Certificate.

DEVELOP THE SAVING HABIT: You can purchase as many War Savings Certificates as you like, up to $500 maturity value in any calendar year. Buy them when you wish — buy them often. Remember, systematic saving is successful saving — and your Country needs your money.

REGISTRATION: Each War Savings Certificate is registered in one name only, and is not transferable.

REDEMPTION: War Savings Certificates cannot be called for redemption by the Government prior to their date of maturity. The owner, however, has the option, after six months, of redeeming his certificates for cash at fixed redemption values. In urgent cases, advance notice will be waived.

You too can SERVE — by SAVING!

Changing opinion in the United States respecting the war, of Edmonton spent the week and here on business and renewing acquaintances. They left preparations, and for 50,000 trained pilots, with sufficient planes ready to defend the nation. One frequently hears the sentiment here that United States should supply the Allies with all the planes and guns they could manufacture, whether they were ever paid for them or not, in order to speed the victory and to keep the war in Europe.

H. T. Halliwell, publisher of the Coleman Canadian and President of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association have been named to the Board of Directors of Canada's War Savings Committee, representing the victory and to keep the war in Europe. We congratulate Mr. Halliwell on his appointment.
